

Changing the World, One Life at a Time.

UNITED METHODIST STUDENT DAY

"The United Methodist faith
and my own ambition go hand in hand. That's what really appeals to me."

— JOSH UNION

NURTURE.
ADVOCATE.
GIVE.

Photo: John Gordon

Changing the World, One Life at a Time.

UNITED METHODIST STUDENT DAY

"The United Methodist faith
and my own ambition go
hand in hand. That's what
really appeals to me."

— JOSH UNION

NURTURE.
ADVOCATE.
GIVE.

Photo: John Gordon

“No matter what I do,
I want to die having done something to better
the planet.”

“You ought to serve the world with your gifts,” said Josh Union, United Methodist Student Day scholarship recipient and student at Southern Methodist University in Dallas. He plans to use his degree in business management and computer science to make the world a better place.

“No matter what I do, I want to die having done something to better the planet,” added Josh, who envisions ways that he can use his business acumen to invest in development projects overseas. His goal is “to serve God as faithfully, as obediently as I can.”

Every year hundreds of students like Josh receive scholarships and loans funded by United Methodist Student Day. “You can actually help provide students with the very materials and encouragement they need,” he said about the importance of this offering.

An honors student with interests that range from fencing to magic to missions, Josh sees how supporting students like himself equips a new generation to change the world. “Supporting United Methodist Student Day would help students help the world. And that’s a great cause,” he commented.

When you give to United Methodist Student Day, you support students who are finding new ways to serve God in the world. Your contributions are needed more than ever.

To read additional stories of lives changed by United Methodist Student Day and to donate online, go to www.umcsgiving.org/giveUMSD.

“No matter what I do,
I want to die having
done something to better
the planet.”

“You ought to serve the world with your gifts,” said Josh Union, United Methodist Student Day scholarship recipient and student at Southern Methodist University in Dallas. He plans to use his degree in business management and computer science to make the world a better place.

“No matter what I do, I want to die having done something to better the planet,” added Josh, who envisions ways that he can use his business acumen to invest in development projects overseas. His goal is “to serve God as faithfully, as obediently as I can.”

Every year hundreds of students like Josh receive scholarships and loans funded by United Methodist Student Day. “You can actually help provide students with the very materials and encouragement they need,” he said about the importance of this offering.

An honors student with interests that range from fencing to magic to missions, Josh sees how supporting students like himself equips a new generation to change the world. “Supporting United Methodist Student Day would help students help the world. And that’s a great cause,” he commented.

When you give to United Methodist Student Day, you support students who are finding new ways to serve God in the world. Your contributions are needed more than ever.

To read additional stories of lives changed by United Methodist Student Day and to donate online, go to www.umcsgiving.org/giveUMSD.